CFPB v. National Corrective Group, Inc., American Justice Solutions, Inc., Victim Services, Inc., and Mats Jonsson – Case No. 1:15-cv-00899-RDB

Background:

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, or CFPB, filed a lawsuit against National Corrective Group, Inc. (NCG) and its related companies (American Justice Solutions, Inc., and Victim Services, Inc.). We alleged that the companies falsely threatened people with criminal prosecution for writing bounced checks and told people they had to enroll in a financial education program to avoid criminal charges. These activities violated the Consumer Financial Protection Act’s prohibition against deceptive and unfair acts or practices as well as the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act’s prohibition against making misrepresentations to or deceiving consumers in the collection of debt.
