Introduction

Below is a list of consumer reporting companies updated for 2018. Consumer reporting companies collect information and provide reports to other companies about you. These companies use these reports to inform decisions about providing you with credit, employment, residential rental housing, insurance, and in other decision making situations. The list below includes the three nationwide consumer reporting companies and several other reporting companies that focus on certain market areas and consumer segments. The list gives you tips so you can determine which of these companies may be important to you. It also makes it easier for you to take advantage of your legal rights to (1) obtain the information in your consumer reports, and (2) dispute suspected report inaccuracies with companies as needed.

Who can see your consumer reports

Consumer reporting companies must follow legal restrictions but generally can provide consumer reports and risk scores to an array of businesses, including:

- Lenders (including those that offer credit cards, home, payday, auto (including auto leasing) and student loans)
- Employers, volunteer organizations, and government agencies to determine eligibility for government assistance (employment and background screening)

1 This list is current as of January 2018. It includes entities that have identified themselves as consumer reporting companies, or have indicated when they provide consumers access to their personal consumer reports. The list incorporates information from the companies’ own self-descriptions that has not been independently verified by the Bureau. This list does not cover every company in the industry. It is not intended to be all-inclusive. Nor does it reflect determinations as to whether any particular entity is subject to the Fair Credit Reporting Act. Furthermore, presence on, or absence from, this list does not indicate whether the consumer reporting company is subject to the Bureau’s supervisory or enforcement authority. To provide your suggested corrections or additions to the list, contact the Bureau at info@consumerfinance.gov and include “Attn: Jonah Kaplan” in the subject line.
- Landlords and residential real estate management companies (tenant screening)
- Banks, credit unions, payment processors and retail stores that accept personal checks (check screening)
- Companies that market and sell products and services specifically to lower-income consumers and subprime credit applicants, such as short-term lending and rent-to-own businesses among others
- Debt buyers and collectors
- Insurance companies (health, life, property insurance screening)
- Communications and utility companies (e.g., mobile phone; pay TV, electric, gas, water)
- Retail stores for product return fraud and abuse screening; as well as retail stores that offer financing such as appliance and rent-to-own businesses, among others
- Gaming casinos that extend credit to consumers and/or accept personal checks

You can get rejected without warning

With the exception of employment screening, users of consumer reports generally do not warn you in advance if they are about to take an adverse action against you based in whole or in part on your consumer report. Outside of employment screening, adverse action notifications are provided after the fact, say, when you have already been rejected for a home loan, residential rental property or auto lease. The accuracy and completeness of your consumer reporting data, therefore, is extremely important.

The good news is you have a meaningful role to play to ensure your data is accurate and complete. The first step is to request your consumer reports from the consumer reporting companies you think might be important to you. The second step is to review your reports closely. The third step is to dispute suspected inaccuracies as needed. This Introduction describes these steps in detail.

How to request a report

Under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), all consumer reporting companies are required to provide you a copy of the information in your report if you request it. Many must do so every twelve months for free upon your request. Additionally, they must give you a free copy of your information if you request it if an adverse action is taken against you based on information in your report from that company and under other specific circumstances. All consumer reporting companies must provide you with a copy of your information for a reasonable fee (for calendar year 2018, the maximum allowable fee is $12.00). Requesting copies of your own consumer reports does not hurt your credit scores. For companies required to provide the information in your report for free annually upon request, they must do so within fifteen days of receiving your request.

Not every consumer reporting company will have information on every consumer. A reporting company that specializes on insurance claim data, for example, will likely not have information about you if you have never filed an insurance claim. Also, some consumers with limited and/or out-of-date credit histories (sometimes known as “credit invisibles”) may not have enough information for credit reporting companies to have reports about them. You may be one of those consumers, although if you are making purchases using credit, or if you have credit that is delinquent and is being reported on to your credit reports by a debt collector, it’s unlikely. According to our research, consumers in lower-income areas are more likely than those in higher-income areas to become newly credit visible due to negative credit report records such as a debt in collection.

You can get your report from most of the companies in this list for free

Most of the companies in this list will provide your information to you for free. We tell you which do. A few companies in the list will also provide you with a free risk score too if you request it. We tell you which of those do as well. To order your report from a company listed below, click on the company link we provide. Some companies have separate forms for requests by postal mail. We provide links to those forms for you.
Know when to check a report

It’s important to fact-check your credit reports from the three nationwide consumer reporting companies (Equifax, Experian, TransUnion) every twelve months to ensure they are accurate and complete, especially if you intend to purchase a home or car with credit, or otherwise intend to apply for credit in the future. Roughly 90% of consumers with credit files aren’t taking advantage of the free benefit to request their credit reports. There isn’t just “one” credit risk score, so it’s important to focus on the reporting information itself from which risk scores are derived. If you are applying for a job, lease (home or auto) or insurance policy, also fact-check your background screening reports to ensure there are no errors. We give you detailed tips on when best to check those reports in the sections below as appropriate.

Finally, if you have been, or fear you may become, a victim of identity theft, fact-check your reports. Data breaches are an unfortunate reality. It’s important to be aware of your options to take greater control of your consumer reporting data. In this year’s edition of this report, we point out which company websites have additional information for you about your options to block access to your consumer reporting data for certain purposes through a security “freeze,” subject to the laws in the state where you reside and also attendant applicable fees.

You have the right to dispute the information in your reports

If you find information in your consumer report that you believe is inaccurate or incomplete, you have the legal right to dispute the report’s content with the consumer reporting company and the company that shared the information to the reporting company, such as your lender. Under the FCRA, companies must conduct – free of charge – a reasonable investigation of your dispute. The company that has provided the incorrect information must correct the error, and notify all of the consumer reporting companies to whom it provided the inaccurate information.

\[2\text{ See Consumer Fin. Prot. Bureau, Consumer Voices on Credit Reports and Scores, at 7 (Feb. 2015), available at }\]
\[https://www.consumerfinance.gov/data-research/research-reports/consumer-voices-on-credit-reports-and-scores.\]
Of course, if your information is current and accurate, even if negative, you will not be able to remove it. Some may claim that they can remove negative information, but if the information in your report is accurate and current – beware! – it’s probably a credit repair scam.

You can learn more about disputing a reporting error on our website, and what to do if you see the same error in more than one report. You can also submit a complaint to us. We will forward your complaint to the company and work to get you a response.

We’re here if you have complaints about your consumer reports

We handle consumer reporting complaints about report accuracy and completeness errors, and other consumer reporting topics, such as, if you are dissatisfied with a company’s investigation of an earlier dispute, if you believe your consumer report was used improperly, if you have problems getting access to your own consumer reports, or if you are dissatisfied with consumer reporting products and services provided to you, such as credit monitoring and identity protection services. We also handle complaints about credit repair. We help consumers connect with financial companies to understand issues, fix errors, and get direct responses about problems.
Nationwide consumer reporting companies

Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion

These are the three big nationwide providers of consumer reports. Their reports contain:

- Information about your re-payment history (as submitted by credit card companies, home and auto lenders (and leasing companies), and other creditors). Experian also reports some positive rent payment data, i.e., payments that are made as agreed between tenants and landlords. (See Experian RentBureau below for more information).

- How much credit you have and use.

- Information from debt collectors including unpaid medical debt that is greater than 180 days delinquent from date of service, and debt from charged-off cable and phone bills.

- Some public information like bankruptcies and tax liens.

- Inquiries from creditors who have requested your credit reports, such as when you apply for credit.

Free report:

Each of these companies will provide one free credit report every 12 months if you request it.

AnnualCreditReport.com will route you to any of the three companies you select. Before giving you a copy of your report, each company will ask you a few detailed questions to authenticate your identity. These questions are designed to be those only you can answer. They might be questions such as asking you to verify information about an existing or closed loan. The question could ask you to identify a street address where you have never lived and you would respond that it was not an address where you lived. The purpose of these questions is to protect the security of your information.
If you run into difficulty getting your free Equifax, Experian or TransUnion annual credit report(s) from AnnualCreditReport.com or its toll-free phone number provided above, try contacting the respective institution(s) directly for help:

- Equifax, (800) 525-6285 (Option 6)
- Experian, (888) 397-3742 (Option 1 followed by Option 1)
- TransUnion, (800) 680-7289 (Option 2)

Freeze your report:
Each of these companies offers you the option to freeze your report with them (subject to state laws) if you request it. Below is each company’s freeze contact information:

- Equifax, (800) 685-1111 (Automated, Option 3) or (888) 298-0045 (Live)
- Experian, (888) 397-3742 (Option 2 followed by Option 2)
- TransUnion, (888) 909-8872
Employment screening

Employment screening companies provide verification information such as credit history, employment, salary and education and professional license verification to employers and others. They may also provide criminal arrest and conviction information as well as fingerprint information from state and federal criminal record databases; driving record information; drug and alcohol testing and health screening information; and non-profit and volunteer activity verification. Many employment screening companies won’t have information on you unless you authorized an employer or other end-user to obtain a report. If possible, when you give your authorization, ask for the name(s) of the employment screening company being used. Contact those reporting companies to fact-check your reports. If the employer is checking your credit history in separate reports, from one or all three of the nationwide providers of consumer reports listed above, request and review those reports too.

Tenant screening

If you are applying as a tenant for a residential property, you may want to ask the management company whether it will be pulling your consumer report(s). If the answer is yes, ask for the consumer reporting company name(s). Contact those companies to fact-check those reports and dispute them as needed. A tenant screening report with negative information in it, such as prior evictions, could result in a rejected lease application, or it may get approved but with tough conditions inserted into the lease agreement such as requiring you to pay twelve months of rent in advance of your move-in date. As such, if you can, consider holding off on submitting your application until you can fact-check your reports and dispute suspected inaccuracies as needed.

If the landlord is checking your credit history from one or all three of the nationwide providers of consumer reports listed above, request and review those reports too.

Contemporary Information Corp. (CIC)

Medical

Fact-check your medical specialty report before applying for private life, health, critical illness, long-term care or disability income insurance.

MIB, Inc.
Collects information about medical conditions and hazardous avocations with your authorization. It reports this information to life and health insurance companies to assess your risk and eligibility during the underwriting of individual (rather than as a member of a group) life, health, disability income, critical illness, and long-term care insurance policies. Generally, you will not have an MIB consumer report unless you applied for individually underwritten life or health insurance at an MIB member insurance company within the past seven years.

MIB, Inc. is a subsidiary of MIB Group, Inc.

Free report:
The company will provide one free report every 12 months if you request it.

Milliman IntelliScript
Collects information on your prescription drug purchase history. You may have a prescription report about you if you authorized the release of your medical records to an insurance company and that company submitted a request to Milliman.
