Investigating payroll taxes and federal income tax withholding

When you get your first paycheck, your take-home pay might not be what you expected. That's because of the taxes that are withheld from your paycheck. Understanding payroll taxes and federal income tax withholding can help you manage your money.

Instructions

- 1 Read the "Understanding paycheck deductions" handout and answer the reading questions below.
- 2 Review the scenarios starting on the next page and answer the questions.

Reading questions

- 1. Based on the example in the handout, how much income tax do employers withhold from employee pay?
  - ☐ 6.20 percent of gross income
  - $\square$  1.45 percent of gross income
  - ☐ 7.65 percent of gross income
  - $\hfill\square$  Employers use the information on Form W-4 to compute income tax with holding.

Scenario 2. Completing a W-4

Meet Paulo Mercedez. He lives at 1111 Apple Tree Lane, Happy Town, KS. He's not married, and he has no children. No one else depends on him for income or support. Paulo recently graduated from college with an engineering degree. On January 1, he started his new job with a company that builds bridges. He's being paid a salary of $55,000 a year, and he'll receive paychecks twice a month. This is his only job.

8. Complete the fields on the blank Form W-4 for Paulo based on the information in the scenario.
