Background

The CFPB is engaged in developing rules related to debt collection practices, and as part of this work has studied what consumers do and do not understand about the debt collection process. Based on this research, the agency developed and qualitatively tested models of validation notices that provide information to consumers about their debts and their rights and choices in relation to those debts. See 84 FR 23274, 23279 (May 21, 2019).

Building on the qualitative work, CFPB engaged ICF in September 2019 to quantitatively measure how variations of the language, content, and display in the validation notices affect consumer understanding and stated behavior.

The survey was conducted with 8,011 total respondents, with 5,312 having experienced debt collections.

The study was a web survey conducted with respondents who were panelists from Ipsos KnowledgePanel® (see Appendix B.) The panelists were randomly assigned to one of 18 versions of either the CFPB’s proposed model validation notice or a validation notice similar to what some debt collectors currently use. The panelists were presented with a validation notice to read and then administered a web-based survey. The survey was limited to panelists participating on a desktop or laptop computer or a tablet. Panelists were not permitted to participate by mobile phone in order to minimize the amount of scrolling when taking the survey online.

Questionnaire Design

Originally the survey focused on the respondents’ understanding of the following:

- Time-barred debt—a debt for which the statute of limitations has expired
- Obsolete debt—a debt that cannot appear on a credit report due to its age
- Debt revival—the concept that a debt that could not previously have been litigated on due to its age can be “revived” for litigation if a consumer makes a partial payment or acknowledges ownership of the debt

The participants in the survey were asked about actions they might take if they received the notice in certain hypothetical situations (vignettes).

The survey questionnaire was drafted by CFPB. ICF and CFPB jointly refined the questionnaire to a draft format for testing. The testing was conducted in two phases. Phase 1 focused on question validation and developing the hypothetical situation-based questionnaire structure. This occurred through three rounds of cognitive testing.

After Phase 1 of the questionnaire testing, the CFPB paused the project to assess the research objectives. Following the pause, the research objectives changed slightly by eliminating obsolete debt as a priority research objective and adding more questions about participants’ understanding of the debt notice. Phase 2 of the questionnaire testing included cognitive testing and a live pilot test of the online instrument.
The final survey was submitted and received approval from the Office of Management and Budget (3170-0070) on May 7, 2019.

Questionnaire Testing – Phase 1

ICF conducted three rounds of cognitive interviews to qualitatively test the debt disclosure questions and the overall structure of the questionnaire. All testing was conducted at Shugoll Research in Bethesda, MD. All participants were given an incentive of $75.

The purpose of the first two rounds of testing was to validate specific questions as well as assess the overall structure and content of the questionnaire. The first round of testing was conducted using a paper questionnaire. Since the survey was in early development, this allowed for more flexibility and efficiency in making changes. Once the general structure of the survey was in place, the second round was programmed for administering the surveys on the web. Each of the first two rounds of testing was conducted over two days with minor edits and clarifications to the questions between the two days. The third round of testing was to validate the final set of questions and make minor changes before fielding.

Questionnaire Testing – Phase 2

Following Phase 1 of cognitive testing, the CFPB paused the project to review and modify research priorities as described above. Upon resuming, ICF conducted two days of cognitive interviews to qualitatively test debt disclosure questions and a pilot test as a dress rehearsal for the full survey.

Cognitive Testing

The main purpose of the testing was to validate new questions that had not been previously tested and the overall structure of the questionnaire. The cognitive testing was conducted at Shugoll Research in Bethesda, MD on February 21, 2019 and March 1, 2019. All participants were given an incentive of $75.

The target number of cognitive interviews was nine per day. Three recruited participants did not show on Day 1, resulting in six interviews. One participant did not show on Day 2, resulting in eight interviews.
Pilot Test

A total of 201 respondents completed the survey between June 11 and 20, 2019. The pilot revealed two issues that were then changed for the full survey. First, missing data rates were high for the open ended question (THOUGHTLIST) and some respondents missed entire grids of questions. The “likely sue” question grid (Q10a, Q12a, Q14a, Q16a, Q21) and “legally allowed to sue” question grid (Q11a, Q13a, Q15a, Q17a, Q22) looked very similar on the screen, with only a slight wording difference in the question, “how likely would the debt collector be to sue” vs “do you think the debt collector is legally allowed to sue”. The question grids are presented in Appendix A. Several respondents missed all questions on one grid while answering all questions on the other grid. In these cases, respondents probably believed they had already answered the questions and advanced without answering the second grid.

To address the missing data, soft prompts were added to the survey. If the respondent tried to advance the screen, but had not answered all questions, the text “Answer is Incomplete” was displayed for each unanswered question and the top of the screen displayed “Page has errors”. The respondent was still allowed to advance without answering the questions.

The second issue was the percentage of respondents who were screening into the survey as having experienced debt collections. The original screening question was, “In the past year, since June 2018, have you been contacted by a debt collector, an attorney, a collection firm, or others trying to recover a debt from you?” This screening question only allowed for oversampling of people experiencing debt collection in the past 12 months, which was 11% of the people screened in the pilot. This question was broadened to allow for oversampling of people who had ever experienced debt collections:

Have you ever been contacted by a debt collector, an attorney, a collection firm, or others trying to recover a debt from you?

01 Yes, within past 12 months
02 Yes, within past 2 years (i.e. between 12 months and 2 years)
03 Yes, within past 5 years (i.e. between 2 years and 5 years)
04 Yes, 5 or more years ago
05 No, never been contacted

Survey Administration

Survey Programming

The final web survey was programmed in Voxco. The survey was limited to respondents who accessed the web link by desktop, laptop or tablet. Respondents who tried to access the survey through a mobile phone were asked to complete the survey on a larger device. This restriction occurred in two stages. First, respondents who initiated the screening survey received the following question:

To make sure you can view all the elements in this survey, we would like you to complete this survey on a laptop or desktop PC or tablet, if possible.
Do you have access to a laptop or desktop PC or tablet?

While Ipsos provides their panel members with technology (See Appendix B), this question was included to confirm that respondents used laptop, desktop PC, or tablet. Respondents who answered ‘no’ were not allowed to proceed. Those who answered ‘yes’ were asked to “Please exit this window and log on to your laptop, desktop PC, or tablet.”

The screen size restriction was also in place for the main survey. If the respondent tried to access the survey on a mobile phone, they received the following pop-up message, “Thanks for your interest in the study. This survey is designed for larger screens; please connect using a computer or tablet.”

The survey included a thumbnail of the validation notice that allowed the respondent to access the notice as needed to answer the questions. The final questionnaire is presented in Appendix A – Web Survey.

Recruitment and Screening

The original target sample size of respondents completing the web survey was 8,000 with 5,667 (67%) having experienced debt collections, and 33% who have experienced debt collections in the past 12 months.

The sample was selected from the Ipsos KnowledgePanel, a probability-based web panel. The KnowledgePanel methodology is presented in Appendix B – Ipsos KnowledgePanel® Methodology. Ipsos randomly sampled households with at least one eligible adult. Selected panel members received an email invitation to complete the survey. The email invitation described the purpose and importance of the research, provided a link to the survey, and included an e-mail address and toll-free telephone number for helpdesk support. The link was a personalized URL for the web survey that included a unique, non-sequential identifier for secure login. When panelists clicked on the URL, they were directed to an Ipsos-hosted preliminary screener to determine eligibility based on debt collection experience. The screening questions are provided in Appendix C – Screening Questions.

Panelists were oversampled based on their debt collections experience using the question in Exhibit 2. Of those screened, 32% have experienced debt collections with 12% having experienced debt collections in the past two years. Sixty-six percent of the respondents completing the survey have experienced debt collections with 31% experiencing debt collections within the past five years and 24% experience debt collections within the past two years.

Panelists that were selected for the survey were redirected to the web survey hosted by ICF.

Data Collection

The survey was fielded from Aug 6, 2019 – Sep 22, 2019. A soft launch was conducted from Aug 6 – Aug 20 with 958 completed surveys. Following the review of the data, the remaining surveys were completed. The cumulative distribution of the completed surveys is presented in Exhibit 3.
After the initial invitation to conduct the survey, email reminders to non-responders were sent on Day 3 of the field period. An additional reminder was sent to non-responders on Day 7 of the field period. Additional reminders were sent to non-responders on September 20th. Upon completion, qualified respondents received an entry into the KnowledgePanel sweepstakes. The last 10% of respondents received a cash-equivalent incentive worth $5.

The median time to complete the survey was 17 minutes. Once started, 89% of respondents completed all questions and 11% of respondents did not finish the survey.

Exhibit 3. Cumulative Surveys by Date

Respondents were randomly assigned to 1 of 18 conditions, each with a varying validation notice type and number of years referenced in the scenario, 3 or 10 years. Two notices were control conditions. One control was designed to resemble validation notices that some debt collectors use today (G_X). The other control was the Bureau’s model validation notice as proposed in the May 2019 Proposed Rule (X_3, X_10). Neither of the control notices contained a time-barred debt or revival disclosure. Four notices contained variations of a time-barred debt disclosure added to the Bureau’s model notice (AC_3, AW_10, C_3, W_10), and five contained variations of both a time-barred debt disclosure and a revival disclosure added to the Bureau’s model notice (R1_3, R1_10, R2_10, R3_10, R4_10, R5_10). The completed surveys by notice condition are presented in Exhibit 4. The validation notices are included in Appendix D – Validation Notice.

During the survey, the respondents were presented with the following scenario:

Person A bought a couch from Main Street Department Store [3 or 10] years ago using a Main Street Department Store credit card. The credit card company contacted Person A several times about the bill over the years, but Person A has not paid it off.

Person A receives a notice about the debt from North South Group, a debt collector. It says that he or she still owes some of the balance from the card. Person A knows that he or she does still owe some money, and thinks the amount on the notice looks about right. It would not be easy, but Person A probably could find a way to come up with money to pay the debt.

Respondents were then shown a validation notice for the debt and asked to answer questions about the debt notice and the scenario, as well as their experiences and attitudes about debt collections.

Response Rate

Seventy-two percent of respondents responded to the screening questions related to debt collection experience (See Recruitment and Screening) Of those selected by the screening process to continue, 69% completed the main survey for a combined 50% response rate.

Data Deliverables

ICF provided the survey data, as well as the screening data and demographic data from KnowledgePanel. The file deliveries included an interim file after the soft launch with roughly 1000 respondents, and a final file with all respondents.
The file contains a survey weight for respondents that accounts for both the panel recruitment and the selection for this specific research, including the oversampling of panelists who have experienced debt collections. The weighting details are presented in Appendix B – Ipsos KnowledgePanel® Methodology.

Additional data files include:

1) KnowledgePanel demographics for nonrespondents and panelists screened out
2) Paradata including the time spent on each question/screen and the order of the rotated questions
3) Paradata measuring the number of times and the total time spent viewing the notice for each screen where the notice was displayed. This file also indicates whether the respondent scrolled down when viewing the notice.

However, BE AWARE: if you make a payment [or acknowledge in writing that you owe the debt], our right to sue you to make you pay the entire debt may START AGAIN.

The law limits how long you can be sued for a debt. If you do nothing in response to this notice, we will not sue you to collect this debt. This is because the debt is too old. BUT if you make a payment or acknowledge in writing that you owe this debt, then we can sue you to collect it.

The law limits how long you can be sued for a debt. Because of the age of this debt, we will not sue you for it.

Appendix B – Ipsos KnowledgePanel® Methodology

Introduction
Ipsos is passionate about social science, health, and public policy research. We collaborate closely with client teams throughout the research process, while applying rigor in every step. We specialize in innovative online research that consistently gives leaders in academia, government, and business the confidence to make important decisions. Ipsos delivers affordable, statistically valid online research through KnowledgePanel® and leverages a variety of other assets, such as world-class advanced analytics, an industry-leading physician panel, an innovative platform for measuring online ad effectiveness, and a research-ready behavioral database of frequent supermarket and drug store shoppers.

Ipsos has recruited the first online research panel that is representative of the entire U.S. population. Panel members are randomly recruited through probability-based sampling, and households are provided with access to the Internet and hardware if needed.

Ipsos recruits panel members by using address-based sampling (ABS) methods (previously Ipsos relied on random-digit dialing [RDD] methods). Once household members are recruited for the panel and assigned to a study sample, they are notified by email for survey taking, or panelists can visit their online member page for survey taking (instead of being contacted by telephone or postal mail). This allows surveys to be fielded quickly and economically. In addition, this approach reduces the burden placed on respondents, since email notification is less intrusive than telephone calls and most respondents find answering online questionnaires more interesting and engaging than being questioned by a telephone interviewer. Furthermore, respondents have the convenience to choose what day and time to complete their assigned survey.

Ipsos Public Affairs
Ipsos Public Affairs has a strong tradition in working with sophisticated academic, government, and commercial researchers to provide high quality research, samples, and analyses. The larger Ipsos offers the fundamental knowledge for governmental agencies, academics, industries, industry, retailers, services companies and the media need to provide exceptional quality in research to make effective decisions. It delivers a comprehensive range of information and consultancy services. Ipsos is one of the leading survey research organizations worldwide, operating in 90 countries with over 16,000 employees.

KnowledgePanel Methodology
KnowledgePanel is the largest online panel that relies on probability-based sampling techniques for recruitment; hence, it is the largest national sampling frame from which fully representative samples can be generated to produce statistically valid inferences for study populations. Our panel provides samples with the highest level of representativeness available in online research for measurement of public opinions, attitudes, and behaviors. The panel was first developed in 1999 by Knowledge Networks, an Ipsos company. Panel members are randomly selected so that survey results can properly represent the U.S. population with a measurable level of accuracy, features that are not obtainable from nonprobability panels (for comparisons of results from probability versus nonprobability methods, see Yeager et al., 2011).

KnowledgePanel’s recruitment process was originally based exclusively on a national RDD sampling methodology. In 2009, in light of the growing proportion of cellphone-only households, Ipsos migrated to an ABS recruitment methodology via the U.S. Postal Service’s Delivery Sequence File (DSF). ABS not only improves population coverage, but also provides a more effective means for recruiting hard-to-reach individuals, such as young adults and minorities. Households without Internet connection are provided with a web-enabled device and free Internet service.

After initially accepting the invitation to join the panel, participants are asked to complete a short demographic survey (the initial Core Profile Survey); answers to this survey allow efficient panel sampling and weighting for future surveys. Upon completing the Core Profile Survey, participants become active panel members. All panel members are provided privacy and confidentiality protections.

ABS Recruitment

To enhance the DSF-based sampling frame used for address selection, we have various ancillary data appended to each household address, thus facilitating complex stratification plans. Taking advantage of such refinements, quarterly samples are selected using a disproportionate stratified sampling methodology across four strata to address differential attrition rates:

1. Hispanic households with at least one 18 to 24 year-old
2. Remaining Hispanic households
3. Remaining households with at least one 18 to 24 year-old
4. All remaining households

Adults from sampled households are invited to join KnowledgePanel through a series of mailings, including an initial invitation letter, a reminder postcard, and a subsequent follow-up letter. Moreover, telephone refusal-conversion calls are made to nonresponding households for which a telephone number could be matched to a physical address. Invited households can join the panel by:

• Completing and mailing back a paper form in a postage-paid envelope
• Calling a toll-free hotline phone number maintained by Ipsos
• Going to a designated Ipsos website and completing the recruitment form online

Household Member Recruitment
During the initial recruitment survey, all household members are enumerated. Following enumeration, attempts are made to recruit every household member who is at least 13 years old to participate in KnowledgePanel surveys. For household members aged 13 to 17, consent is collected from the parents or the legal guardian during the initial recruitment interview. No direct communication with teenagers is attempted before obtaining parental consent. While surveys can be conducted with these teens directly, in most instances teen surveys are conducted by first selecting a sample of active members who are parents. This parent route alternative makes it possible to reach a larger sample of teens.

Survey Sampling from KnowledgePanel
Once panel members are recruited and profiled by completing our Core Profile Survey, they become eligible for selection for client surveys. Typically, specific survey samples are based on the equal probability selection method (EPSEM) for general population surveys. Customized stratified random sampling based on “profile” data can also be implemented as required by the study design. Profile data can also be used when a survey calls for pre-screening—that is, members are drawn from a subsample of the panel, such as females, Republicans, grocery shoppers, etc. (This can reduce screening costs, particularly for rare subgroups.) In such cases, we take care to ensure that all subsequent survey samples drawn that week are selected in such a way as to result in a sample that remains representative of the panel distributions.

Survey Administration
Once assigned to a survey, members receive a notification email letting them know there is a new survey available for them to complete. This email notification contains a link that sends them to the survey. No login name or password is required. The field period depends on the client’s needs and can range anywhere from a few hours to several weeks.

After three days, automatic email reminders are sent to all non-responding panel members in the sample. Additional email reminders are sent as needed. To assist panel members with their survey taking, each individual has a personalized member portal listing all assigned surveys that have yet to be completed.

Ipsos also operates an ongoing modest incentive program to encourage participation and create member loyalty. The incentive program includes special raffles and sweepstakes with both cash rewards and other prizes to be won. Typically, we assign panel members no more than one survey per week. On average, panel members complete two to three surveys per month with durations of 10 to 15 minutes per survey. An additional incentive is usually provided for longer surveys.
Response Rates
As a member of the American Association of Public Opinion Research (AAPOR), Ipsos follows the AAPOR standards for response rate reporting. While the AAPOR standards were established for single survey administrations and not for multi-stage panel surveys, we use the Callegaro-DiSogra (2008)3 algorithms for calculating KnowledgePanel survey response rates. Generally, the KnowledgePanel survey completion rate is about 60%, with minor variations due to survey length, topic, sample specifications, and other fielding characteristics. In contrast, virtually all surveys that employ nonprobability online panels typically achieve survey completion rates in the low single digits. This means that – aside from the fact that nonprobability panels are inherently not representative of any known populations – the effective size of KnowledgePanel (55,000 panel members × 0.60 completion rate = 33,000 respondents) would be equivalent to a nonprobability panel with 1,650,000 members that on average secures completion rates close to 2% (1,650,000 panel members x 0.02 = 33,000 respondents).

Ipsos KnowledgePanel Weighting
Sample Weighting
As detailed above, significant resources and infrastructure are devoted to the recruitment process for KnowledgePanel so that our active panel members can properly represent the adult population of the U.S. This representation is achieved not only with respect to a broad set of geodemographic indicators, but also for hard-to-reach adults (such as those without Internet access or Spanish-language-dominant Hispanics) who are recruited in proper proportions. Consequently, the raw distribution of KnowledgePanel mirrors that of the U.S. adults fairly closely, barring occasional disparities that may emerge for certain subgroups due to differential attrition.

For selection of general population samples from KnowledgePanel, a patented methodology has been developed that ensures all samples behave as EPSEM samples. Briefly, this methodology starts by weighting the pool of active members to the geodemographic benchmarks secured from the latest March supplement of the U.S. Census Bureau’s Current Population Survey (CPS) along several dimensions. Using the resulting weights as measures of size, a probability-proportional-to-size (PPS) procedure is used to select study specific samples. It is the application of this PPS methodology with the imposed size measures that produces fully self-weighing samples from KnowledgePanel, for which each sample member can carry a design weight of unity. Moreover, in instances where a study design requires any form of oversampling of certain subgroups, such departures from an EPSEM design are accounted for by adjusting the design weights in reference to the CPS benchmarks for the population of interest.

The geodemographic benchmarks used to weight the active panel members for computation of size measures include:

- Gender (Male/Female)
- Age (18–29, 30–44, 45–59, and 60+)
- Race/Hispanic ethnicity (White/Non-Hispanic, Black/Non-Hispanic, Other/Non-Hispanic, 2+ Races/Non-Hispanic, Hispanic)
- Education (Less than High School, High School, Some College, Bachelor and beyond)
- Census Region (Northeast, Midwest, South, West)
- Household income (under $10k, $10K to <$25k, $25K to <$50k, $50K to <$75k, $75K to <$100k, $100K to <$150k, and $150K+)
- Home ownership status (Own, Rent/Other)
- Metropolitan Area (Yes, No)

Study-Specific Post-Stratification Weights

Once all survey data have been collected and processed, design weights are adjusted to account for any differential nonresponse that may have occurred. Depending on the specific target population for a given study, geodemographic distributions for the corresponding population are obtained from the CPS, the U.S. Census Bureau’s American Community Survey (ACS), or in certain instances from the weighted KnowledgePanel profile data. For this purpose an iterative proportional fitting (raking) procedure is used to produce the final weights. In the final step, calculated weights are examined to identify and, if necessary, trim outliers at the extreme upper and lower tails of the weight distribution. The resulting weights are then scaled to aggregate to the total sample size of all eligible respondents.

1. Start with the base weights of assignees, weight all screened respondents to represent the ages 18+ population.

weighting variables

- Gender (Male and Female) by Age (18-29, 30-44, 45-59, 60+)
- Race-Ethnicity (White/Non-Hispanic, Black/Non-Hispanic, Other/Non-Hispanic, Hispanic, 2+ Races/Non-Hispanic)
- Census Region (Northeast, Midwest, South, and West) by Metropolitan Status (Metro and Non-Metro)
- Education (Less than High School or High School, Some College, Bachelor or higher) and Over)
The resulting weights are trimmed and scaled to sum to the un-weighted sample size of total screened respondents (screenwt; n=23110)

2. Use the weights from step (1) to derive the Eligible benchmarks based on weighted screener respondents.

3. Start with the screener weights, weight all qualified respondents to represent Eligible benchmarks with demos controlled within debt and non-debt.
