

Protections for Renters During COVID-19

English Transcript

If you're having trouble paying your rent during the coronavirus pandemic, you should know that there are relief options and protections for many renters.

You may be entitled to these additional protections if:

- you receive federal rental assistance
- or live in federally subsidized housing,
- or your landlord has a federally-backed mortgage

Also, many state and local governments have limited evictions during the coronavirus pandemic. These eviction limits are different from the national protections. Depending on where you live, these limits may apply to you.

We have resources to help you understand these new protections and if they apply to you.

To learn more about national, state, and local protections for renters, visit consumer finance dot gov slash renters.