GETTING STARTED

Starting the money conversation

This tool helps you identify where someone is and where they want to go financially. This can help you choose a good place to start in this guide.

Often people with disabilities, like consumers without disabilities, struggle with money and financial issues. When you feel the time is right, you can simply ask the person to complete this tool.

Because the tool is simple and only has a few key questions, you may be able to gather the information in conversation. Reading the questions and recording the answers may be especially useful if you are working with a person that has a disability that makes reading or writing difficult. Use the following chart to analyze the answers. This analysis will help you determine where to start.

What to do

- Have the person you’re working with answer the questions based on their current situation and attitudes. There are no right or wrong answers.

- Review their answers with them and match their answers to the modules in the toolkit. This can help you determine which module will be the most useful right now.

A step further

If you keep a copy of this tool, be sure you have a system for keeping the information completely confidential. Be ready to describe your system for keeping this information secure. As you proceed, follow your organization’s policies when it comes to storing and handling people’s personal information.
Find a place to begin by Starting the money conversation

1. Answer the following questions based on where you are today.
2. Your answers will help to identify the information and resources that can help you address the financial issues you care about.
